Elder Says America Vital Today

by Vicki Soha

"Americans will be free as long as they are righteous," said Elder Richards, member of the Council of Twelve Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, at the Tuesday devotional in the Smith Building.

America has been a promised land since the time of Joseph when he was sold into Egypt, declared Elder Richards. Isaiah and Jeremiah prophesied also of the mountains of the promised land where God would establish His Kingdom.

Columbus Guided

"Columbus came to America under divine leadership to give this land a new birth. The constitution and the government were inspired," said Elder Richards.

"People cannot desecrate the land that God has chosen without being destroyed," he stated. "The land will be free as long as the people are righteous. If we have the faith to believe and understand that God is the only God of this land, He will fight our battles of this land and keep us from other kings," he continued.

Kingdom Here

Elder Richards said that when President Dwight D. Eisenhower declared "America is great because it is good, and if America ever ceases to be good, she will cease to be great," he was only reiterating what God had said many times.

"The valleys of the Rocky and the mountains are where the Kingdom of God is established and where He will preserve His people," Elder Richards declared.

Student Leaders Plan Meeting To Confer On Issues, Ideas

A special leadership conference for 1956-57 and 1957-58 student government members will be held on April 27, from 11 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. at Saratoga Springs.

This conference is to enable new officers and committee members to discuss their respective duties and responsibilities with their predecessors. There was no meeting of this nature last year and consequently the busy schedules of both old and new officers prevented them from taking time to discuss these things.

Attending the conference will be all elected officers, the edi-

Y Day History Stresses Importance Of Emblem

by Karen Larsen

Daily Universe Writer

Y Day is steeped in tradition and history that dates back to 1906 when the block letter was laid out, then whitewashed by a bucket parade.

The suggestion for a white Y on the mountain was given April 27, 1906, and a purchase was made of the 280 acres on which the Y is situated for the cost of $2.50.

Classes Worked

During the early years, the faculty had a hand in repairing and cleaning the Y as well as the students. After toiling all morning on the mountain the workers journeyed to Saratoga Springs for a party. Then the faculty and studentbody competed with each other in softball games.

The Y, which is now 330 feet in length and 120 feet in width, was first put into block form in 1921. At the blocking of the Y the faculty cleaned the trail and the letter, freshmen hauled water, sophomores carried whitewash and mixed it, juniors and seniors poured it.

Also at this historic event on Y Mountain, music was provided by a band to give the workers spirit and energy. A banquet was prepared for the men and served by the coeds.

In 1954, there were 200 more coeds working on the Y than men, which may have been some kind of feminine record.

Classes Suspended

This year Y Day will take place on May 1, when all classes will be suspended. After cleaning the Y and performing other services on campus in the morning, free food will be furnished to the workers.

In the afternoon, games will be played in the football field and in the evening a dance will be held at which the least preferred man on campus will be announced. The Intercollegiate Knights will light the newly painted Y during the same evening.

Senate Decides For Demands Of Summerfield

WASHINGTON — The Congress Tuesday quickly passed and sent to the White House a bill to give Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield an extra 41 million dollars to restore full postal service this weekend.

The House completed congressional action on the emergency appropriation less than three hours after the Senate had approved the additional funds. Passage in both chambers came by voice vote with no discussion.

As a result of the swift action, Summerfield is expected to announce that he will rescind his orders cutting off Saturday deliveries and curtailing other postal services.

The emergency appropriation was demanded by Summerfield to keep the post office operating until June 30.

Veep Needs Bids For Positions

According to Roger Victor, second vice-president-elect, applications for pep and dance chairmen for next year are available in the Student Coordinator's office in the basement of the Student Service Center.

All applications must be turned into Victor's box in the coordinator's office by 5 p. m. Thursday.

AMS Carnival Lists Events For Saturday

Date for the Associated Men Students' Carnival will be Saturday, rather than Friday as previously announced, according to Merton Bowman, chairman.

The annual event includes a dance, booths and contests to be held in Heritage Halls parking lot. Plans are being handled by the AMS and all proceeds will go back into studentbody funds.

Booths, games and concessions will be sponsored by social and geographic units, declared Bowman.

In case of rain the Carnival will be transferred into Smith Fieldhouse, said Bowman.

Committee members for the Carnival include Carol Carruth, secretary, Jerry Griffiths, business manager, Leo Weidner, dance, Al Smith, layout, and Dean Frampton and Bowman, publicity.

Mentioned as a special carnival attraction by Bowman, was display being planned by foreign students.

Committee Names Honor Council Chairman

Eugene Earl Kingdon, Staten Island, N. Y. has recently been announced new Honor Council Chairman by Monroe McKay, chairman of the selection committee.

Appointment was based upon Kingdon's experience with the honor council. He has been a member of the council during every year while attending Brigham Young University.

Kingdon is a second quarter junior in political science and pre-law. He has served as president of the Young Republican League for three years.

Posts Listed

The new chairman is a member of the Blue Key National Honorary Fraternity. He has served on Inter Organization Council committees and various assignments; one of which is the public relations committee for Freshman Orientation.

Kingdon has been a delegate to the National Student Association and a member of the IOC court. He has been honored for two years as a Banyan personality.

Slide film series and a motion picture about the honor system are being made by the BYU Motion Picture Studio. These will be very useful to the council Kingdon explained.

Kingdon said, "The job of trying to make the Honor System meaningful is the most challenging responsibility present at BYU. The gap between the ideal and the actual is large."

Realizes Responsibilities

"The heart of the problem is the rebellion most of us feel against conformity. I'm very much an individualist, and I'm very sympathetic to that feeling myself," Kingdon replies.

He realizes that Church standards do exist and are required at BYU, and because of this many students feel they are caught in a "squeeze" — their own individualism on one side and the Church standards on the other.

MEOW

Dear Editor,

Your issue of April 9 is at paw containing a short item on the first page requesting applications for a bell ringer. I am presently incarcerated at the anti-vivisection league of Illinois, but if you could arrange bail and guarantee my protection, I'm sure I could come to Provo.

I am interested in this job because I have had experience playing your bells before. At the time I was under the influence of chloroform, but when sober and after the course at Princeton, I'm sure I could do a ding-dong job. Four of your last year students are good friends and will furnish references for me.

Yours for better bells,

DISGRACED

To the Fad-Changers of the Era:
It has been our observance during the past few weeks (not to mention all previous final weeks) that there has been an extensive show of pedal-pushers and girl's levis worn by BYU coeds (presumably) on our BYU campus. Are we regressing gradually to small-town high school garb as the style for an LDS institute with an enrollment of 9,000?

There is a time and place for leisurely attire and we admit that we are not "fashion plates" twenty-four hours of the day, but we hardly approve of this practice as I'm sure many others do not. Students are busy people but they need not appear lazy. It would only take a few minutes of their time to appear a little more lady-like.

It might be excusable to see levis worn in certain instances while crossing campus but do pedal pushers need to appear in the library during study hours? And today we noticed a coed leisurely sprawled on the "wall" in front of the Eyring Science Center studying with levis on. What kind of an opinion of BYU would a visitor have if he were to observe this sort of thing?

We write this hoping that those who are guilty of this will think twice of their appearance next time they venture forth inappropriately dressed. Will we have to engage some "Pedal Pusher Vigilantes" to rid our campus of this disgrace?

Signed:

"We who enjoy the privilege of representing the fair sex"

BOY AND GIRL

OH SWEET DISTRACTIONS

Will power is something nobody wants nor has when Lady Spring comes floating in. Wayward ones blame this loss on the change of temperature, birds and bees or on the soft touch of some dazzling, plotting female.

MYRIAD DISTRACTIONS

Admittedly there are myriad distractions during this period of nature's awakening. But, one can't help wondering where the feminine populace has been hiding during winter's cold.

Hibernation must be the answer, for with the coming of spring's warm breath an army of soft creatures has arisen to beguile by pouring itself into streamlined puddle jumpers (leotards?) and waging warfare on the fleeting male GPA.

IS IT FAIR?

Is this weapon fair to studious and unwary males who have lost all immunity after winter's long inactivity? Certainly this popular coeds' uniform defies both gravity and the ability of material to withstand the strain of a bend or twitch... not to mention man's natural independence.

Of course man-hungry seniors and ex-LM's must have their last gasp try. However, are these new fangled sew-'em-in breeches taking advantage of our campus' many gullible Yokums who know no better than to look?

WILL POWER GOODBYE

Marriage is a highly desirable goal, but can't our breezy femmes of the tight attire wait until summer or until men are looking the other way? This would give BYU's proud bachelorhood a brief respite and an opportunity to seek immunity.

Will power... "au revoir!"

WHAT SAY STUDENTS?

At this time the Daily Universe offers a challenge to students of Brigham Young University.

Pick a name to suggest to the board of trustees for our forthcoming student union building.

YOUR CHANCE TO TALK

Students are always crying, "we never get a voice," or "we never get to express our wishes." Well, here is your chance. Simply fill in the ballot printed here, tear it out, and place it in one of several boxes. These boxes are located in the lobbies of the Smith Family Living Center, Smith Building, McKay Building, Eyring Science Center and Grant Library.

BYU's steering committee has made a careful study into the needs, desires and requirements of the studentbody. And, they have included these needs in their recommendations for features to be incorporated into the student union building.

But they have failed to come up with a suitable suggestion for the name of the building.

TOO MANY NAMES

Several independent polls to gather name ideas have been taken. Over 90 names have been suggested. Obviously no name can be fairly selected from so many possibilities.

It is felt that many of the names suggested are frivolous and unimaginative. However, we have included representatives from each general grouping in the ballot. We believe that the union building name should be respectable and wone we can be proud of. It should have meaning and purpose. We believe that the building should not be named for a man, but should be imaginative, expressing the spirit of the university's studentbody. In the ballot we have placed what we feel are the six best and most appealing possibilities, as taken from previous polls. You may, of course, write in your own suggestion, but we recommend that you select one of the six listed. This procedure will give us a definite name to suggest to the board of trustees instead of 90.

DEDICATED TO VETS

It is felt that the 116 men who lost their lives fighting for our country should be honored by not necessarily naming the building for them, but dedicating it to them.

Here are the names we have picked from polls, given to you previously for your approval. They are listed on the ballot below. Choose wisely, choose intelligently

Newspapers Too Sensational

MINNEAPOLIS (ACP)—Almost everyone is familiar with a criticism often leveled against daily newspapers in the United States, that of "sensationalism," the over-emphasis on accidents, fires, murders, sex, etc. Much of the criticism stems from the belief that newspapers, in their over emphasis on sensational news, fail to give due consideration to the really important news—news of world affairs, scientific and educational achievements, governmental affairs, etc.

ACP Queries

Associated Collegiate Press asked the following question of a representative national cross-section of college students in order to get the collegiate slant on this issue:

On the whole, do you think the average daily newspaper in the U. S. overplays or underplays sensationalism (accidents, fires, murders, sex, etc.)?

The results: Men Wom. Total
Overplays .... 68% 77% 71%
Underplays ... 9% 5% 8%
Undecided ... 23% 18% 21%

The figures show a fairly sizeable majority agreeing with the charges of "sensationalism," and a large group of students undecided on this issue. In addition, the coeds appear to be more inclined to go along with the charges of "sensationalism."

Students Agree

Among students agreeing with the "sensationalism" charge the majority feel newspapers sensationalize in order to build circulation and sell papers. Other students think "sensationalism" is the only way newspapers can capture and keep mass appeal. Still others cite specific newspapers as being outstanding in respect to sensational material. Here are several typical comments:

"The appeal is directed to individuals of a lower caliber, hence sensationalism," is the feeling of a junior at Bemidji State Teachers College (Bemidji, Minn.).

A Lynchburg College (Lynchburg, Va.) sophomore believes "sensationalism" is necessary "in order to build up circulation." But a freshman coed at Columbia College (Columbia, S. C.) simply says: "It sells more papers."

Papers Fair

With students indicating they believe the average newspaper underplays crime, sex, accidents, etc., the predominant feeling seems to be that most newspapers do a fairly good job, while only a few of the big city dailies do most of the sensationalizing.

Students undecided on the question generally fall into one of two areas of belief. The first is indicated by the comment of a freshman at Villanova University (Villanova, Pa.) who believes newspapers neither overplay nor underplay, but "state things the way they actually happen." A Southern Oregon College (Ashland) senior represents the other point of view with this remark: "You can't generalize, it depends upon the individual paper."

Physics Profs Earn Grants for Research

Brigham Young University physics professors, Dr. E. Eastmond and Dr. Richard Hales have recently received a $100,000 grant for research work from the Atomic Energy Commission, an agency of the U. S. Government.

Dr. Hales said the money will be used to study the phenomenon of the force of the waves.

Electrons are produced in the laboratory, reported Hales, by discharging 25,000 volts of electrical energy into a gas tube.

Dr. Hales said that as this energy is introduced into the tube, gas heats, moves within the tube faster than the speed of sound. The phenomenon that is being studied, Hales said, takes place in a nanosecond, a thousandth of a second. Temperatures upward of thousands of degrees are produced by this energy discharge.

Dr. Hales said the main equipment used in studying these shock waves is an electronic measuring device with connecting oscilloscope viewing screen.

The purpose of the experiment is still categorized as "classified" material by the U. S. Government and is not available to the public knowledge, Hales said.

Dr. Hales, an Ogden, Utah, graduate physics student, is aiding Dr. Eastmond in this experimental work.

Studentbody Seeks Committee Heads

Students interested in working on the Sophomore Loan Fund Committee Chairman will sign up for interviews on the bulletin board, Student Center basement.

Interviews are also being held in the sophomore assembly hall, homecoming float chairmen and business manager.

Interviews will be held in the executive council room Wednesday from 7:45 to 8:45 a. m. and Thursday from 6 to 7 a. m. and 5 to 6 p. m. Sophomore student interviews will be held in the hall.

In 1894 the title of the head of Brigham Young Academy was changed from "principal" to "president" and in 1903, the name was changed from Brigham Young Academy to Brigham Young University.

Indians Hold Panel Discussion, Talk Over Current Problems

Five Indian students attending Brigham Young University participated in a panel discussion Monday on some of the basic problems facing Indians today, according to Karl Young, moderator.

Provo Women's Council sponsored the discussion which demonstrated that today's young Indians are confronting problems of adjustment realistically and intelligently, according to Young.

The panel was conducted in the Women's Council Club House. The civic-minded organization has been influential in helping Indians gain citizenship in the past.

Panel members were Allyson Sekaquaptewa Polacca, Southwest Indian Mission; John Compton, Provo; Joe Louis Jiminez, Nambo, N. Mex.; Melvin Thom, Walker River, Nev., and Bahe Billy, Fayette.

The young Indian students discussed termination of government aid and the ultimate dissolution of reservations.

Young reports that panel members approached the problems with mixed feelings. He said that the students were "in favor of facing the facts. They know that termination of government aid will come. They want to have time to make the necessary adjustment."

Another serious problem considered was that of Indian education. The panel distinguished between two divergent elements "at home." The traditionalists fear that education will tear young Indians away from long established customs and ideals.

The progressives are in favor of Indian education to enable the American aborigines assimilate properly into the modern way of life.

First home of the Brigham Young Academy was the old Lewis Building, located on the corner of Third West and Center. This building was destroyed by fire on January, 1884 and school was dismissed only one day until temporary quarters could be obtained.

Council Protects Honor Of BYU Studentbody

by Gary Harker
Daily Universe Writer

If you can have honor among men why not have honor among students, questioned the Blue Keys, national honorary service fraternity, in 1948 when they considered placing complete confidence in the students' sense of honor to guide them at Brigham Young University.

System Approved

Deciding that there was no better place to have honor among students than at a university which is operated by a church which encourages honor, Blue Key members wrote letters to other universities in the country using an honor system, to obtain information about their methods of conducting college life.

They discussed their plan with the faculty, and were pleased to find that the president of BYU, Howard S. MacDonald, approved of the new system and was very interested in using it at BYU.

In 1949 the plan was put into effect, and an organization with student representatives from each class was formed.

Council Accepted

Spring quarter of '49 the idea of an honor council was put before the studentbody and about 80 per cent accepted it. After the faculty studied and accepted the proposed self-monitoring system, a program was formulated to give full recognition to the Honor System.

The main problem was teaching the students and faculty how the honor system operated. The Honor Code was published and procedure in university publications informed students.

In 1951 the council placed slogans in the classrooms to keep students honor conscious. The first code was very strict, and in 1953 the code was revised to make it less punitive.

Violations Handled

The student council, which handles only academic violations, works in conjunction with the faculty council which covers non-academic violations.

At the present time the council is making a film about the honor system to help students better understand its functions. The group is making slides to show to students at orientation, and is also preparing a booklet on the honor system, so that all incoming students will know the relationship of the honor system to college life.

The honor system has only been in operation at BYU for seven years but students have been going to school on their honor since Karl G. Maeser told them, "I trust you all. I give you my confidence. I put you all on your word of honor."

All-Star, Celtic Lineup Listed For Pro Game

Converging on Provo Wednesday, for what may be the highest scoring basketball game in the Smith Fieldhouse annals, is an all-star aggregate which looks like a who's who of the hoop sport.

Boston boasts "Mr. Basketball" himself, 6-1 Bob Cousy, said to be one of the most fabulous players ever to grace a court.

Dolph Schayes appears to be the "light" of the Major League All-Stars. Schayes has an aggregate of over 10,000 points as a pro.

Bob Cousy (14), 6-1, Mr. Basketball, the greatest player ever to walk onto a court — All-America at Holy Cross — NBA player of the year.

Bill Sharman (21), 6-2, Former All-America from USC — leading scorer for the Celtics this season (1413 points) — considered the game's greatest free throw shooter.

Frank Ramsey (23), 6-4, Former All-America from Kentucky — has played everywhere but the pivot for the Celtics — very aggressive.

Andy Phillip (17), 6-2, All-America with University of Illinois "Whiz Kids" — veteran of 10 seasons with pros — one of sharpest ball handlers in league.

Bill Russell (6), 6-10, Two years All-America at San Francisco — top rebounder, defensive man in NBA — member of USA Olympic team — one of the game's greatest.

Jack Nichols (16), 6-7, University of Washington All-America . . . straight A student at UW — has a year to go for doctoral degree.

Tom Heinsohn, 6-6, Another AA from Holy Cross — NBA Rookie of the Year — scored 37 points against St. Louis as Celtics won playoff game — first rookie to score 1000 points first season.

Dick Hemric (20), 6-6, All-America choice at Wake Forest where he averaged 25 points a game — plays pivot and corner.

Jim Loscutt (18), 6-5, All-America at Oregon — Celtic muscle man — great rebounder — average 10.6 points a game.

Arnie Risen (19), 6-9, Ohio State player — turned to pro basketball 12 years ago — 33 years old, but still going strong.

MAJOR LEAGUE ALL-STARS—
Dolph Schayes (19), 6-8, All-America at NYU — has scored over 10,000 points as pro — plays for Syracuse — hit for 47 points against Philadelphia Warriors this year.

Bob Houbregs (10), 6-7, University of Washington AA — hook shot artist — is 44 per cent accurate from the field — smartest player in the league, critics claim.

Togo Palazzi (8), 6-4, Holy Cross All-American now with Syracuse — broke Cousy's scoring record at Holy Cross, a 24.8 game average.

Dick McGuire (15), 6-0, Boyhood chum of Cousy, great backcourt man — holds Madison Square Garden record for assists — with Knicks.

Neil Johnston (6), 6-8, Philadelphia star who played formerly with Ohio State — gave up baseball for basketball six years ago — uses height very well.

George Yardley (12), 6-5, Former Stanford star now with Fort Wayne — averaged 21.5 points a game this year — all-around player.

Mel Hutchins (9), 6-6, Brigham Young University All-America player — was with Fort Wayne, but has been traded to Knicks — great defensive player — will captain NBA boys.

Lou Tsioropoulos (29), 6-5, Another Kentucky All-America player — now with Celtics — teammate with Ramsey and Hagan at Kentucky.

Carl Braun (3), 6-5, Colgate star now with New York — leading scorer with Knickerbockers — backcourt standout.
